OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF BANKS
STATE HOUSE, BOSTON 33, JANUARY 19, 1949

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

The unsettled international situation, continued boom tendencies in the national economy, the heavy volume of both public and private spending, and the efforts of public authorities to control and curb the inflationary spiral through fiscal and monetary manipulations as well as by appeals for voluntary restraint on the part of the lending banks, have all served either directly or indirectly to make the past year a hectic one, presenting many challenges and problems to the institutions under the supervision of this Department.

The operational problems faced by these institutions also become the concern of the Banking Department, for while it is neither the function nor the desire of this office to undertake to dictate the management policies of the banks under its supervision, it nevertheless is bound by vested authority and moral responsibility to remain constantly on the alert for any signs that point to deviations, intentional or otherwise, from the solid path of sound banking practices as designated by statutes, regulations and by tested and proven principles.

It is therefore most gratifying to be able to report that insofar as it is determinable through the medium of supervisory examinations and audits, and from the periodic reports required to be submitted, the financial institutions under the supervision of this Department have exercised admirable restraint in extending credit for purposes that might lend support to the forces of inflation, while fulfilling their normal function of providing credit for sound and constructive purposes. Most particularly have their efforts and facilities been directed toward meeting the demands for credit required to alleviate the housing situation which has presented one of the most pressing problems of the post-war economy.

Performances and trends relating to the state chartered segment of the banking industry in Massachusetts have quite generally followed the nation-wide pattern. Highlights of the general picture have been the shifts in asset classifications marked by reductions in holding of United States government securities, expansion of investments in state, county and municipal obligations, and the continued increases in loans for private purposes; the latter accomplishment being effected despite a pronounced contraction in the volume of consumer credit due to both voluntary restraint and the recent re-imposition of regulatory controls.

Despite reductions in certain categories, over-all commercial deposits showed an increase for the yearly period. On the other hand, savings funds as represented by deposits and shares presented a somewhat conflicting picture with savings banks and savings departments of trust companies experiencing a net loss in deposits, while share holdings in co-operative banks and credit unions reflected continued relatively substantial gains. However, in the case of savings banks the loss in deposits was more than offset by the addition of dividend accumulations.

The liquidity positions of all types of supervised institutions remained strong and relatively high, despite slight decreases during the period.

Capital and surplus funds of the various designations continued to increase in good volume, and the banking industry of the Commonwealth faces the uncertainties of the future with what is undoubtedly one of the strongest, if not the strongest reserve positions in its history.

LONG-TERM BORROWING FOR EXPANSION PURPOSES

Within recent months, some members of the co-operative bank industry have evinced growing interest in the matter of long-term borrowing by such banks for periods extending up to ten years, as a means of expanding their lending power. This question, in common with the over-all subject of credit, projects certain widely divergent lines of reasoning which lead far from a common ground of agreement and conclusion.

It is the opinion of this Department that as a general rule, long-term borrowing for the purpose above mentioned, does not fall within the limits of conservative banking policy for the following reasons:

1. It tends to transgress the express purpose for which these particular banks were organized.

2. Its very nature prevents or deters quick adaptation to fluctuating conditions, which is an integral quality of short-term credit.

3. It inclines to subordinate the interests of the savers by contracting the bank's line of credit which should be held in reserve for abnormal withdrawal requirements.

Proponents of the policy of such long-term borrowing base their main argument upon the premise that banks should not be compelled to turn down requests for mortgage loans because of their inability to obtain capital funds in sufficient volume to meet the demands.

While this Department recognizes a certain degree of validity in this attitude insofar as mortgage loan requirements of a purely local nature are concerned, it nevertheless is of the considered opinion that existing conditions do not warrant any present modification in its established policy which limits approvals for borrowing to a one year maximum, with renewals where circumstances warrant.

In this connection, it appears pertinent to mention here that in all matters involving questions of sound banking practices, the best interests of the savers must properly receive the prime consideration of this Department.

BRANCH OFFICES

The consideration of petitions for branch offices presents one of the most difficult functional problems of this Department. All facts presented must be carefully reviewed and appraised to determine whether or not they will meet the primary objective behind the chartering of banking institutions; namely, the satisfaction of the public convenience.

While this Department is sympathetic to the problems of institutions whose desire to extend their facilities to other locations is motivated in part by alleged static conditions of a local nature, it must nevertheless consider the banks as a whole, and refrain from concurring in any action which could expose them to the dangerous tendencies that are liable to result from over-stocked banking facilities.

Accordingly, in observing its responsibilities pertaining to the factors of public convenience and competition, this Department has felt obliged to render negative decisions in connection with several of the petitions considered during the past year.

BANKING DEPARTMENT

The writer's recommendations to the General Court in 1948 looking to a revision of the laws relating to charges for the cost of examination of supervised institutions, all of which were described in my last Annual Report, were enacted into laws effective July 1, 1948. The increase in income to the Commonwealth resulting therefrom reflected in additional budget appropriations for the operation of the Banking Department, has permitted the inauguration of a long overdue reorganization plan covering both supervisory methods and departmental operations.

I am satisfied that the intelligent cooperation of the 1948 Legislature on this important matter will be favorably reflected in the days ahead. A more detailed report will be submitted upon conclusion of our current activities in this reorganization work.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LEGISLATION

(As submitted in accordance with General Laws (Ter. Ed.), Chapter 30, section 33, as amended by Chapter 67 of the Acts of 1948)

[NOTE: The drafts of legislation referred to in the following text have not been made a part of this report but are embodied in 1949 House Bills Nos. 11 to 22 inclusive.]

GENERAL

Examination of Banks

Our statutes respecting banks and banking and the Division of Banks and Loan Agencies oblige the Commissioner of Banks, personally or by his assistants, to visit, and examine or audit, as the case may be, each institution under his supervision at least once in each year. Due to the growth in size of practically every such institution and due to the multiplicity of services which the various banks are now rendering the banking public of the Commonwealth, it has been increasingly difficult for my predecessors to approximate an actual discharge of this duty, and in recent years it has been impossible to do so, despite the employment of additional examiners.

In the year 1947 the assets growth above referred to and the bank growth resulting therefrom made it plain quite early in the year that a visitation of each institution could be accomplished only through the most stringent economy of working hours but, despite a strict budgeting of the time of the personnel of the department, illnesses and resignations from the service of the department together with an unexpected burden of work resulting from the discovery of several substantial defalcations, ruined the department's plans. In 1948 our institutions have grown not only in size but in number, and defalcations and other special problems have likewise increased. Despite additions to the staff of the department authorized in the calendar year 1948, as this is written it is apparent that the Commissioner will be unable to discharge his statutory obligation to examine each institution under his supervision within the remaining regular work-weeks of the year. Extra hours or overtime work will be the only solution.

This department has problems of personnel, and of the employment of personnel peculiar to itself and not matched in any other state department. The examining work of the department cannot be laid out in advance according to particular patterns or by prearrangement with the supervised institutions, as surprise is one of the important elements of a supervisory examination or audit. Under the present rules determining hours of employment and compensation of employees for overtime work it is not possible to meet emergencies such as those encountered when a defalcation is discovered in a supervised institution, with some plan which will permit spending additional or overtime examining hours in the particular bank, and consequently the staff conducting such a particular examination may be delayed in their work for one or many days.

The personnel on the Commissioner's staff are loyal employees, very much interested in their work, and determined to co-operate in the discharge of the functions of the department. They cannot, however, be expected to put in, without additional compensation, what may be considerable overtime, either to do the extra work which is involved in running down a defalcation or which may be necessary to insure completion of an examination in time to permit all the examinations which must be made in a calendar year to be completed. Where other department heads can foresee and prepare for overtime work, this is not possible in this department. With most banks now closing on Saturdays the examiner in charge cannot determine until he is actually on the premises and in the midst of an examination whether the management of the bank will or can permit its office or vaults to be kept open at unadvertised times for the convenience of the examining staff.

I therefore recommend that when it becomes necessary for any of the reasons above stated for the Commissioner of Banks to require that any of his assistants perform overtime work on the premises of a supervised institution, he may authorize the employees of the department to work overtime, and obtain for them compensation at the rates established by the Commission on Administration and Finance, but without the necessity of arranging therefor in advance. The supervised institutions now pay the bulk of the expenses of the Banking Department's staff, and are therefore doubly entitled to have the protection that the law contemplates they will have through timely annual examinations or audits by that staff. The accompanying bill will accomplish that purpose.

The Annual Report of the Commissioner of Banks

Since the office of the Commissioner of Banks was first created the statutes have required that the Commissioner make an annual report to the General Court containing statements of the condition of each bank under his supervision with such other information as the Commissioner has considered to be in the public interest. Even in the first year in which such a report was made (1906) at a time when there were only 371 supervised institutions and when the entire staff of the Bank Commissioner consisted of himself and ten persons, the printed volume containing his report consisted of 793 pages. It covered the calendar year 1906, but was actually printed in June 1907. Today the Commissioner of Banks has under his supervision, 1,108 (as of October 31, 1948) separate institutions or companies, including 200 licensed lenders, with banking assets approximating eight billion dollars as compared with slightly more than one billion in 1906, and an authorized staff of 157. The detail which the members of the General Court or others in the public have required the Commissioner of Banks to supply in his report now comprises four separate volumes. The mechanical work of compiling, co-relating, tabulating, summarizing and indexing now consumes so much time that it is physically impossible to attempt to have any recent figures available for reporting on March 15, the date now set by law by which the Commissioner's report must be made.

In each year since 1906 the banking assets supervised by this department, and in many years the number of banks supervised, have increased substantially. Massachusetts is likely to continue to be one of the first five states in our Union in banking importance, and the recent gradual increases are more than likely to continue well into the future. It is therefore imperative that some other system of reporting be developed.

Statistical reports have little value unless they contain reasonable current facts. It seems to me to be almost pointless to expend substantial amounts of the public funds in printing reports containing statistics that are already old. For this reason, and in order to more economically spread the burden of mechanical work involved throughout the year, so that there may be fewer interruptions of the more important work of examining these supervised institutions, now periodically interrupted by the necessity of bringing in field men to assist in preparing reports for publication, I recommend that the four volumes comprising the report be prepared and published at different dates throughout the year. This will permit of using fairly current figures for each volume. It will involve a departure from the present policy of reporting statements of condition as of the last of October, or as of the last of December, but that should involve no disadvantages beyond the initial transitory period.

The accompanying Bill will provide that Part I of the Commissioner's report will consist of statements of condition of trust companies and certain miscellaneous supervised units compiled as of December 31 in each year and published on or before the first of March following; Volume II will comprise statements of condition of savings banks as of the last business day of March, published on or before the first day of June next following; Volume III will comprise similar data with respect to credit unions, taken as of the last day of June and published on or before the first day of September next following; and Volume IV will contain the figures respecting co-operative banks and savings and loan associations as of the bank day of each for September, published on or before the first day of December next following.

It is expected that this will materially diminish the problems in connection with the typographical preparation of the report, and should result in there being available to the General Court statements of condition and other details concerning the operations of particular banks much fresher than is today possible.

Of necessity, several other minor changes in the chapters relating to particular classes of banks must be made for the sake of conformity. All such are included in the accompanying suggested legislation, which will also substitute the Commissioner of Banks for the Department of Banking and Insurance as the one who shall annually report upon the operations of mortgage loan companies, if any, in the state.

Triennial Verification of Accounts

For well over fifty years our statutes governing the operations of savings banks have contained provisions requiring the verification of accounts in savings banks once in each three years, and since trust companies have been permitted to maintain savings departments, similar provisions have appeared in the laws respecting such departments. These verifications were intended to be, and admittedly have been, strong deterrents against manipulations of such accounts and embezzlements from the banks through such operations.

When first inaugurated, verifications were much more thorough and complete than is today possible. While our population was more or less static the addresses of their depositors on the books of our savings banks were much more accurate and up-to-date than is generally so today. The number and amount involved in accounts which are periodically turned over to the State as unclaimed, after having been inactive for from twenty to almost thirty years, indicate why this is becoming increasingly so. The greater mobility of our population, increases in the amount of business done by mail with thrift banking institutions and other changing conditions have, to a real degree, impaired the efficiency of this verification of accounts. The experiences of some banks in the most recent triennial verification have demonstrated that in some circumstances the costs of an attempted verification of all accounts materially outweigh the actual results obtained.

The next triennial verification in the old and familiar pattern would occur this year. To give the industry, committees of which have been studying verification procedures, systems and expenses, more time in which to complete their verifications, I last year recommended that the General Laws requiring triennial verification be suspended, until such time as better legislation might be suggested. I am now satisfied that a fixed, rigid or unflexible requirement relative to verifications is not the answer. The conditions in particular banks warrant, if they do not absolutely make necessary, the employment of different policies as between banks and as between classes of banks. I therefore recommend legislation of a type that will allow some discretion on the part of the supervisor, in determining what proportion or classes of accounts shall be verified, to what extent, and at what times. This will permit the Commissioner to decide upon some plan that should to both management and the supervisor seem reasonable, expedient and fairly economical in accomplishment. The accompanying draft will insure that the verifications will be conducted at reasonable intervals, and will allow for the development of a state-employed corps of verifiers if such a step seems justified. In any event it will permit the supervisor to make a scientific survey with the assistance of the banks' independent auditors and his own staff's experience of the particular needs of each bank, in reaching a determination of the extent and manner of each verification.

In connection with his power to make special examinations of a supervised institution whenever he deems that necessary, the Commissioner can require complete verifications in a particular bank as a part of said special examination at any time, so no relaxation of the safeguards that verifications involve is contemplated by the accompanying draft of a Bill.

CREDIT UNIONS

As of October 31, 1948 there were 457 credit unions having assets of $62,701,407, representing an increase of $5,522,063 since October 31, 1947. During the calendar year 1948 ten credit unions began business, seventeen entered into liquidation and two were consolidated into a single corporation.

Throughout the years of their existence, personal loans have constituted a major phase of the operations and objectives of credit unions chartered by this Commonwealth. During World War II this type of business fell off to a marked degree, and although the present outstanding balance approximating $17,757,000 represents a high point as to dollar volume, it remains considerably below the pre-war level with respect to the percentage relationship to total assets. However, the upward trend which was resumed after the war period has continued at a relatively steady pace up to the present time.

Due to the fact that statutory limitations do not permit a credit union to make a real estate loan in excess of 5 per cent of its assets, a very large proportion of the credit unions are unable to enter this field of investment. The larger credit unions, however, continue to expand their holdings of real estate mortgages which increased nearly $2,700,000 during the past year and now show a total investment of about $13,700,000.

In almost every instance, the liquidation of credit unions has merely represented the culmination of a considerable period of inactivity on the part of the institutions involved. Such credit unions generally have had limited assets. Their terminations should not be considered as evidence of a failing interest in the credit union movement. The charters that have been issued to new groups give promise of a steady and continued development.
